Lowest cost flights to orlando

February 9, 2012 Most car buyers focus heamuch on the price of a vehicle, and does not take into account total ownership costs. The cost of depreciation is actually the biggest expense when it comes to buying a new car. When you sell a vehicle later on the road, this loss of value is the cost of depreciation. Some cars that are priced higher can keep their value better, costing you less in the long run when compared to a model with lower prices. Other costs such as fuel expenses, maintenance, repair, financing, and insurance also have a significant impact on your overall costs. This week, Kelly Blue Book unveiled the winners of the 2012 Total Cost of Ownership Award. The awards honor current vehicles with the lowest projected property costs in their class for the initial five-year ownership period. It is very important to consider these overheads when buying a vehicle. Take a look at the winners and make sure they are on your list of considerations. With a growing list of Latin American routes of low-cost airlines such as Frontier, JetBlue and Spirit, it's easier and more affordable than ever to explore Central and South America. Land economies, especially compared to more expensive destinations such as Western Europe, make these destinations an even better deal. San Jose, Costa Rica Who flies there: Frontier (from Denver), JetBlue (from Orlando) and Spirit (from Ft. Lauderdale) Cost: At press time, for a round-trip flight in mid-September, the cost (including taxes and fees) on Orlando's JetBlue was $315, and $320 on Ft. Lauderdale's Spirit. Frontier suspended service in Costa Rica between August 29 and December 18, but a flight from Denver in mid-August cost $433. Why visit: San Jose is the main entry point for travelers exploring Costa Rica. Long known as a major ecotourism destination, Costa Rica offers rainforests, volcanoes, beaches and an incredible diversity of wildlife. Visitors can fly through the jungle canopy on a zipline, raft downstream, bird watching, surfing and more in the small Central American country. Lima, Peru Who Flies There: Spirit (from Ft. Lauderdale) Cost: For a round-trip flight in mid-September, airfare (including taxes and fees) on the Ft. Lauderdale Spirit was quoted at $400. Why visit: Explore Lima for a taste of Peru. In the capital you will find museums, archaeological ruins and colonial architecture. Lima is an ideal spot for day trips like Caral, the archaeological ruins of the oldest city in the Americas. Lima is also a popular place of departure and end for travelers exploring Lake Titicaca, Machu Picchu, Colca Canyon, and other popular sights. Introducing Lima and the rest of Peru as one of our destinations to watch in 2009. Bogotá, Colombia Who Flies There: JetBlue (from Orlando) and Spirit (from Ft. Lauderdale) Cost: For a flight from and back in mid-September, including taxes and fees, JetBlue had Orlando fares for $268. Although Spirit offers lower fares to members of its club for $9 fares, the cost of a regular fare from Ft. Lauderdale was $348. Why visit: Eclectic modern architecture and serious serious architecture scene set the capital of Colombia. Bogotá is markedly safer than it was a decade ago, although crime remains a concern. Still off the beaten path for mass tourism, Bogotá is emerging as a destination for intrepid travelers. The city is full of parks, churches and museums worth visiting. Among the city's 50 museums is the Museo del Oro, which displays more than 34,000 pieces of gold. A thriving coffee scene fueled by the large quantities of coffee produced in Colombia provides visitors with an ideal break between the sights. Bogotá is not the only Colombian destination served by Spirit. The airline also flies from Ft. Lauderdale to Cartagena and Medellín. And curious travelers, but intimidated by Colombia, may consider it a guided adventure trip from the country. Panama City, Panama Flying There: Spirit (from Ft. Lauderdale) Cost: A midweek round-trip flight from Ft. Lauderdale to Panama City in mid-September was $234 including taxes and fees. Why visit: Panama shares the adventure and spirit of ecological travel of neighboring Costa Rica. White sandy beaches, small tropical islands, jungle and of course the Panama Canal offer a multitude of ways to go outdoors. Panama is an easy destination because English is widely spoken, and U.S. dollars are accepted everywhere. Los Cabos/Cabo San Lucas Who Flies There: Frontier (from Denver) and Southwest through their Mexican partner Volaris (from Oakland via Toluca from July 16) Cost: For a round-trip flight in mid-September, including taxes and fees, Frontier had service from Denver for $310. At Southwest's Mexico partner Volaris, the flight (which includes a connection in Toluca, Mexico) was steeper at $551. It remains to be heard whether Volaris' prices will fall as it establishes its relationship with Southwest. Why visit: Cabo San Lucas is on the southern tip of Mexico's Baja California Peninsula. A popular sport fishing area, Cabo also features luxury resorts and a party atmosphere against beautiful beaches. The Los Cabos region also includes the small colonial town of San Jose del Cabo, where the pace is slower and more relaxed. The Los Cabos Tourism Board has discounts on accommodations this summer and fall. These are not the only destinations in Central and South America served by low-cost carriers. You can find flights from Alaska/Horizon and Sun Country to Mexico, and Spirit service to Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua. The trend of low-cost airlines connecting the U.S. and Latin America is growing, so keep them on your radar when you compare airline tickets, although that probably means you'll have to connect through the carrier's airport hub. Did you fly to Central or South America on a low-cost carrier? Did you save money? experience with other readers below. February 6, 2020 Kelley Blue Book recently released the winners of its 2020 Five-Year Cost-to-Own Awards, which analyzed the actual costs of all 2020 model vehicles, including projected depreciation. For the overall winners of the brand, Subaru was named the best best and Acura best luxury brand. And category winners include the Hyundai Venue 2020, Elantra and Chevrolet Tahoe. Below is a look at all the winners of the 2020 category as well as last year's winners.
